

ATTENTION: Worried you have COVID-19?

Currently, testing supplies are limited. Local, state, and federal partners are working to expand testing supplies and the ability to promptly test people experiencing symptoms.

Due to testing limitations, health care providers and local health departments are screening people to prioritize testing for those who based on symptoms and exposure history have the highest likelihood of having COVID-19 including:

- Hospitalized patients who have signs and symptoms compatible with COVID-19.
- Symptomatic patients with a high risk of getting very sick from COVID-19 such as older adults and individuals with underlying health conditions like diabetes, heart disease and lung disease.
- People including healthcare workers who within 14 days of symptom onset had close contact with a suspected or confirmed COVID-19 patient.
- People who have a history of travel from affected geographic areas (<https://wwwnc.cdc.gov/travel/notices#alert>) within 14 days of their symptom onset.
- Other factors, which can guide COVID-19 testing decisions like COVID-19 infections in a certain area especially where community transmission has been reported.

People who are concerned they may have COVID-19 should self-isolate and call ahead to their primary care provider to be screened over the phone. The provider can evaluate and determine if testing is necessary.
